Changing The Narrative

TEACHERS ARE PROFESSIONALS!! Research is clear that literacy learning is dependent on teachers with a deep understanding of reading and writing as complex, multi-faceted processes that can't be reduced to a fixed one-size-fits-all approach. Effective teachers are not technicians. Research is also clear that the human element is key in all we teach...learners' strengths, interests, needs, choices, and how we respond to the learner. It is you, the teacher, who makes the difference in the literacy learning of our diverse children. Today's current narrative casts teachers as technicians, semi-professionals who lack the judgment and knowledge to teach children to read well. We can change that false narrative and it is essential that we do! Come and learn how together we can elevate teaching as a profession and bring joy back to our teaching.
